"I want to see in every department of our community a seat for the public service which will not our civil service in a dignified class and make civil service one of our most honorable careers in this country. I want to see the highest standards of efficiency in every possible way where we can as government action secure that end. I want to have the life of our people enriched; the opportunities for the labor multiplied. I want to see labor employed at the best wages, with proper hours and wholesome conditions."

Above all, I want to see that sense of mutual dependence which will make us realize as we have never realized before, that in these days of keen competition, we must work together, realizing that every man's chance is only a chance for service."

CLANS GATHERING

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire) EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 2.—Mexican Consul Soriano Bravo, announced that he had received a message to night from General Trevino saying that General Murguia had arrived with reinforcements at Jimenez to join the campaign against Villa. The message, he said, made no reference to Parral or to any movements by Villa hands in that section.

GREAT INVENTOR CALLS WILSON A NATIONAL PERIL

(Special to The Republican) NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Under the caption "Why I am against Wilson" Charles Proteus Steinmetz, consulting engineer of the General Electric company, one of the foremost scientists in America, published the following statement:

"I like to see an American in the presidential chair—I mean a real American—a man as Grover Cleveland was amongst the democrats—and as Theodore Roosevelt was while president. A man who can always and under any circumstances be relied upon without bluffing and without building up to defend our country's just interests. Therefore, I am against Wilson. There never was a time when our country was so little in danger of war as in the last years, where every great nation was willing to go almost any length to please us and nevertheless we have continuously been on the brink of war and still are. Our Mexican fiasco, some of our soldiers are still in the hospitals with tropical diseases, and what have we accomplished? We have lost the confidence of the smaller nations, we have lost the respect of the great nations—and worst of all—we are losing our self respect."

"Our national power? While we are discussing the means of defense—why has our president systematically and consistently weakened our nation's defensive powers by destroying the effectiveness of the navy—the submarine? A nation with an inferior navy could never attack us. The domestic policy of the administration, the result has been industrial disorganization and interference, lowering of our national efficiency at the time when the other nations are organizing for higher efficiency of national cooperation and even when forced to constructive legislation as in the federal reserve bank law, the decentralizing of Mr. Wilson's type of mind has impaired the usefulness of the structure."

"I am opposed to Wilson as a national danger. I believe that Hughes will make a good president, and as between the two men I decidedly prefer Hughes."

SAYLOR DISQUALIFIED

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire) TOLEDO, Nov. 2.—Major Saylor of Indianapolis was disqualified in the eighth round of his fight with Jimmy Duffy of New York here tonight, for failure to obey commands of the referee to break clean in clinches. The exhibition was to have gone 12 rounds. Duffy was nine pounds heavier than his opponent.

SEPARATE WAR BREAKING OUT AMONG GREEKS

the operations in Dobruja, except the statement that the Russo-Rumanian advance guards are reconnoitering and that Constanta has been shelled from the sea, but without success. In Macedonia, fighting continues in the bend of the Cerna river region with small success for the Serbs. On the remainder of the front bombardments are in progress.

Although the Berlin war office has officially announced that the Germans have evacuated Port Vaux, thus placing this important strategic point once more in the hands of the French, the Paris war office, as yet, has made no mention of this fact. The evacuation of the fortress was due, according to unofficial advices, from Berlin, to a pre-arranged plan owing to the belief of the military leaders that the sacrifice of life in holding it was disproportionate to the value of its retention. To the north of the Somme, the French have made an additional gain between Les Boeufs and Sully-Sailly and also taken two hundred German prisoners—making the total of men captured Wednesday and Thursday in this region 726.

East of Gorizia and on the Carso plateau near Valone, the Italians, after violent artillery preparation, attacked the Austrian line and, despite the resistance of the Austrians, captured in the former sector, the eastern slopes of Tivolo and San Marco and the heights east of Sober. On the Carso plateau, several wooded hills were taken and an advance of two-thirds of a mile was made to the east of Segit. During the fighting 4,731 Austrians were made prisoner and six guns, numerous machine guns and other war material were captured.

CHURCH GOING FAST AROUND YALE'S END

Last season Church was one of the fastest subs on the Yale squad and this year he looks good for a regular job in the line-up throughout the rest of the season. The speed he has shown for his weight and especially his class in passing and overhead play will most likely get him into all of this season's games against Yale's hottest competition.

eral F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the war office, was asked what he thought of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's statement that the entire allies could break through the western front in thirty years. General Maurice replied:

"Our recent offensive was not designed to break through. Its purpose was to relieve the pressure on Verdun and kill as many Germans as possible. I will not undertake to say whether it will take thirty years to get the Germans out of France, but the allied strength constantly is growing and the German strength constantly is declining. The effect of the allied offensive is accumulative. When the weather permits its resumption, the results will be greater than ever. Torrential rains in the past week have prevented sections of any great consequence."

"It is no doubt true that the Germans in recent flights have been short of ammunition. During the winter, with its short days, limiting the use of artillery, they will be able to replenish their stores, but, despite the bad weather, we have no intention of letting up on them."

"Our offensive will continue throughout the winter when conditions are at all favorable."

Fighting on Rumanian Fronts BERLIN, Nov. 2. (Via wireless to Sayville)—Combats in the Carpathian passes are being carried on with extraordinary rage. The Rumanians at the eleventh hour are trying to bar the gates of Wallachia by the engagement of rapidly concentrated reserves, says the Overseas News Agency.

Mighty trenches north of Predal as well as positions at Azuga which consist of permanent works completed several months ago, including trench systems, wolf traps and barbed wire defenses were partly secured by the cannon of the advancing German and Austro-Hungarian army groups or were partly outflanked.

East of Azuga, the Toemser pass, as well as south of Toemser pass, the attacking troops slowly but irresistibly marched ahead against unimpeding, says the agency, which adds:

"These mountain battles are being fought through terrain filled with snow and made impossible by rains, between ravines and on snow covered summits. They require the utmost energy on the part of the commanders and troops and belong to the most difficult but at the same time most glorious exploits of this campaign."

Russian Interpretation PETROGRAD, Nov. 2. (Via London)—Interest in the Rumanian situation continues to overshadow minor episodes in the Russian western front, particularly since the approach of winter already has precluded the possibility of further operations on a large scale in this theater.

There has been, however, a noticeably growing tendency on the part of the Germans to begin a more or less serious offensive at various points in the most important of which is the one undertaken south of Brzezany where the Russian positions along the Narayuvka river have offered exceptional advantages for a tanking attack upon Halicz for the north and at the same time constituting a direct menace to Lemberg.

The Germans aimed thrusts all along the line from Brzezany to Halicz but concentrating most heavily in the region of Michalishon would be a determined attack on the night of October 25 which carried the Russian positions.

Russian critics, although manifestly surprised at the German ability to launch an offensive of large forces at this point, do not consider the hostile advance over a six mile front of more than local importance and state that its only significance is in relation to the Transylvanian operation being an obvious attempt to create a diversion and prevent further Russian cooperation on the Transylvanian front where General von Falkenhayn, after being temporarily checked, is making a new effort to advance.

Stopped Teutons ATHENS, Tuesday, Oct. 31. (Via London, Nov. 2, delayed)—The Austro-German offensive in Transylvania appears, definitely, to have arrived at a stop," declared N. N. Florodor, Rumanian minister to Greece today to the Associated Press correspondent.

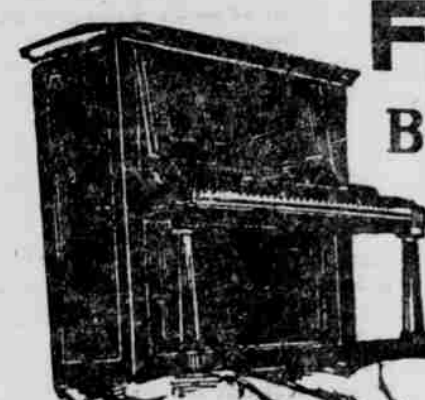

"Operations of this amazing nature, operation on the Transylvanian front, is constantly successful if they are destined to fail utterly," continued M. Florodor. "Every day that we are able to postpone attacks, we grow stronger and our opponents grow weaker. Any concerted attack presupposes a certain amount of unrestrainedness to meet it on the part of those attacked but if it is not immediately successful have sought to determine the affairs of this nation in accordance with interests outside this nation. What are we going to do with them?" "Effect you," a man cried. "I will tell you what we have done," he went on. "We have built up a party of the people."

PREST. WILSON ENDS CAMPAIGN IN METROPOLIS

The president predicted victory, saying he was not worried over the outcome. "I do not want to be elected unless I am one of you and you believe in me," he added amid applause.

He broke of the eight-hour day, saying it shows there are some men in this country who look at life from the workingman's point of view. "I have done a mere act of justice," he said.

"I want to say," declared the president, "that I believe the forces of this nation are gathering for a demonstration of power on the part of public sentiment on the seventh of November such as has never been displayed in the world before. This great tide of opinion is rising, not for the purpose of destroying anything, but for floating all those happy bargains in which men may travel who know they are bound for the finest goals of human ambition. This tide of humanity swelling in America is over with the purposes of peace; it is wholesome with the judgments of justice and when it has come to the flood men will see that it is a great body meant to drive all the industries of the world by the pulse or heart beat of men who love the world and believe in their fellow men.

"Where America has found herself then she will be able to play the part which it was destined she should play. Let all men who believe the same thing keep together; let no kind of intimidation, let no kind of vague and fruitless promise, divert us for a moment."

"Let us first see that we are a united and irresistible nation, and then let us put all that force at the service of humanity in order that men may say that they know what human rights are and that they live and understand nothing but what is humanely right. That is the simple message that I have come to deliver to you."

"We have set in government in response to the opinion of the people. We have marshalled the men who think together, the men who feel together, the men who purpose together in such hosts that I predict they will prove invincible. I am not fearful of any of these lines of cleavage should run so deep as to touch the heart of this people. I know what this rising tide means. It does not mean confidence in any particular man; it means confidence in the destinies of America and the confidence of the American people that they will again govern their own affairs."
